An Introduction to On Call and Emergency Radiology

The Faculty of Radiologists is delighted to announce a new half day course entitled "An Introduction to On Call and Emergency Radiology". This course is aimed at a wide audience, including but not limited to, NCHDs with an interest in pursuing Radiology as a future career, Emergency Medicine and Surgical or Medical NCHDs preparing for on-call image interpretation and any practitioner looking to refresh their knowledge of the commonly encountered imaging features of on-call emergencies.

The course will consist of three didactic lectures, focusing primarily on plain x-rays with a smaller portion of the lecture focusing on cross sectional imaging. Lectures will emphasise crucial diagnoses and common pitfalls in emergency imaging interpretation. The day will close with an interactive case-based session to allow trainees to test their knowledge. Certificates of attendance will be provided.

The course has been designed under the auspices of the Faculty of Radiologists and is led by Dr. Ferdia Bolster, Consultant Radiologist, Mater Misericordia University Hospital, Dublin. Lectures will be delivered by senior Specialist Registrars Drs. Yvonne Purcell, Terence Farrell, Timothy Murray and Aileen O’Shea from the Faculty of Radiologists training programme.

Programme

13:15 The emergency and on call Chest x-Ray: Dr. Yvonne Purcell (St. Vincent’s University Hospital)

14:15 Musculoskeletal imaging in acute conditions: Dr. Terence Farrell (St. James’ Hospital)

15:15 Coffee break

15:30 Imaging Appropriateness and Radiation Protection: Dr. Timothy Murray (Beaumont Hospital)

16:30 Case Based Assessment and Feedback: Dr. Aileen O’Shea

17:30 End of course

Credits: 4.5 external CPD credits

Registration: To facilitate a high level of interactive teaching, places are limited. The first 15 eligible applicants will be enrolled. In excess of this, a waiting list will be drawn up in order of date and time of application. Applicants on the waiting list will have first refusal of places on additional/subsequent On Call and Emergency Radiology courses run by the Faculty of Radiologists, RCSI during the 2016-17 academic year.

Course Fees:

Consultant Radiologists, SpRs, NCHDS €50.00

Applicable CPD-SS registrants: Fees will be waived